()-Signifies hidden wrestlers

*-Signifies Finisher

(H)-states that the wrestler can compete in Heavyweight matches in Victory Road, (J)-Junior Heavyweight, (H/J)-Can compete in both divisions in Victory Road

The number following weight classification denotes total edit skill points for wrestler. The higher the number, the greater their skills are, but it does not necessarily mean that they will be able to consistently defeat others with lower statistics. Different wrestlers have different strengths and weaknesses, and anyone can win a match with the right strategy and execution.

The short term following the number denotes the wrestler's CRITICAL type-the types of moves a wrestler can KO their opponent with. Just because a move is not marked does not mean that it can not CRITICAL an opponent, also a CRITICAL is an imprecise thing to get. Just because a move falls within the wrestler's CRITICAL type, it does not mean that it will CRITICAL please contact me if you find any mistakes with these.

A "!" following a move states that it can CRITICAL.

A !! indicates a favorite CRITICAL move of the author.

CRITICAL Types; (N)-None, (F)-Finisher-not all finishers CRITICAL, and top rope moves rarely ever do so, even if noted to do so, (T)-Technical-Pins and quick moves that do not KO an opponent, but rather make for an easy pin, (P)-Power-A favorite type of many fans, moves such as powerbombs and piledrivers are in this category, (Sub)-Submission-Submission holds will instantly make an opponent give up with this one, and often will break a limb as well (rolling sell animation) (Str)-Strike-Punches, kicks and certain other striking moves can CRITICAL, including grapple variations, (Sup)-Suplex-many throwing moves and judo type moves, not to mention many suplex types all CRITICAL with this type

Note-Move names are mainly named off of either memory or off of the move name FAQ, some may be explained further if needed for clarification. The names are intended to satisfy the largest audience possible, so both Puro vets and American fans new to the game will understand what the guide refers to. Some moves will be referred to by their gimmick names. In the 1.5 update and since, I added descriptions to as many moves as possible, to make this guide relevant in the future, when some of the popular American move names might not be as common. Some moves have better substitutes which are available as downloads, and some of those will be indicated. Please contact me if you feel that the names can be improved, or if there are inconsistencies aside from gimmick names. L and R stand for directions as no favorite moves use the triggers for execution.

2. Wrestler Organizations

(All organizations are in their default FPD order listed from left to right starting with NJPW, if you see any errors in the short descriptions or want me to add something, please let me know.)

New Japan Pro Wrestling (NJPW)
Number of Wrestlers-39(27 Heavyweights, 12 Jr. Heavy Division)
Average Edit Points per Wrestler-162(163 Heavy, 162 Jr. Heavy)

{NJPW was founded by Antonio Inoki back in the early '70s, following his departure from the original major Japanese promotion, the JWA. His claim that wrestling is the strongest martial art has been the basis of the NJPW style through the years. New Japan Strong Style has evolved over time, from a technical style in the '70s to a power wrestling style emphasizing fighting spirit during Riki Chosyu's years in charge, to a controversial semi shoot style recently, and finally back to a pure wrestling style today. New Japan is considered the leader in Japan, and their huge roster in Fire Pro D is one result.}

All Japan Pro Wrestling (AJPW)
Number of Wrestlers-18
Average Edit Points per Wrestler-174

{Another federation created in the same era as NJPW, All Japan was founded by Shohei Baba. Their style has also changed through the years, as the original King's Road style used a great deal of intelligent psychology and hard strikes, but became less about that later on. With the death of Baba, and the departure of Mitsuharu Misawa and all but two members of the roster, All Japan went through its toughest phase. AJPW had several changes following the release of FPD, including the defection of Keiji Mutoh from NJPW who became the owner of All Japan.}

Number of Wrestlers-12

Average Edit Points per Wrestler-137

{A groundbreaking hardcore/garbage organization, founded by Atsushi Onita, FMW set the path for groups like ECW and the eventual "Attitude" era in the WWF. FMW, now defunct today was known for having some of the most outrageous storylines ever in wrestling, especially with the infamous Team No Respect, but also was known for some brutal wrestling action as well.}

Legendary Wrestlers
Number of Wrestlers-3
Average Edit Points per Wrestler-242

{Three of the most dominant wrestlers in modern professional wrestling history, these three can wipe the mat with almost anyone in the game. Gotch was one of the best technicians of all time, considered almost invincible in his prime, and is still a great influence on many modern stars in Japan. Thesz was also an incredible technician, and held titles and defended them even when he was over 60 years old. Rikidozan was considered the founder of Japanese wrestling, starting the JWA, before dying at the age of 39 when he was stabbed by a gangster in a minor dispute.}

3. Credits + Some great links

1. The GameFags Fire Pro boards---introducing me to the phenomenon that is Fire Pro
2. Bill Wood, Pink Spider, Kkorn34713, Frank James Chan, Viper Mask, GokuKenshiro, Orochi Geese, and all the other great FPD contributors---creating guides, giving me information and advice that helped me figure out the translations and identities for the wrestlers and moves, and continuing to improve the Fire Pro experience, check out their guides to truly become a Fire Pro master!

3. Spike---creating the best wrestling game series ever, period.
4. www.gswf.org ---for providing the edit points and being a general Fire Pro D authority on about anything
5. www.puroresufan.com ---for being the best up to date authority for English Puroresu fans, and really piquing my interest in Japanese wrestling, has a great board for wrestling discussion and international wrestling news
6. www.puroresu.com ---for being the best English source available on the history of the wonderful world of Puroresu, a must see for any fan of pro wrestling the way it used to be.
7. Jujigatame Puroresu (<http://geocities.com/jpuroresu>) ---great profiles, got lots of move names from here, a good place to go if you just want to learn the basic facts about the Puro stars in FPD.
8. www.quebrada.net ---Excellent site with a great set of summaries of old school Puro, plus a great Puro Dictionary that can help you learn basic Japanese terms.
9. <http://www.angelfire.com/freak/jblackhart/moves.html> ---This is the site for Jason Blackheart's download moves that he hacked from Fire Pro Z for the PS2-I have not been able to download any of them yet, but I recommend this site to anyone who can do so.
10. <http://fpwd2k.gswf.org/Frontpage.html> ---Rock n' Roll's excellent site that walks you through graphical representations of the menus and has great edit packs to boot. Must see for beginners new to FPD, and vets looking for edit packs.
11. <http://og-fpd.freesevers.com> ---Orochi Geese's excellent site with its own exclusive FAQ's, edit packs, his own personal fed(OG-FPD), and other goodness.

If any of these links fail to work, please inform me, and if applicable, send me a working link to the site. If you feel you have been left off the list, want to contribute or see a site that should be included, please let me know ASAP!

4. Coming Soon(or whenever I get around to it) v2.0-Offense/Defense styles, special skill listing, a total revision, splitting off the Finisher/Favorites FAQ into a bare bones guide, and changing this into a short character guide with more info including profiles for everybody, short summaries of the positives and negatives for each character, and other notable moves.

New Counter Moves FAQ charting special counters for each defensive style-this one will take a while, ask for this on the FPD board if you want it.

5. Other Stuff

A.) Timeline and Update Information:

Added to v1.7-Slight format change, added edit points information to organizations and to Other Stuff, added CRITICAL poll information

Added to v1.6-Format change, table of contents added, more small fixes

Added to v1.5-Lots of move names and small fixes

Added to v1.4-Added League Summaries, added more move descriptions and fixed others, fixed yet more stupid errors

Added to v1.3-Added Critical Types and Moves, Added hidden character information, revised move names and added extra descriptors to some moves, fixed small errors

Added to v1.2-Added Total Skill Points to all wrestlers.

Added to v1.1-Revision check to document, small and numerous errors fixed, Added Johnny Ace who was left out due to stupidity.

(Dates not given, due to the fact that updates seemed to all take several parts and submissions, fixing small, stupid errors and what not.)

- 5.-Aleksandr Karelin
- 6.-Masakatsu Funaki
- 7.-Semmy Schilt
- 8.-Yuki Kondo
- 9.-Volk Han
- 10.-Bitsadze Tariel

Top CRITICAL Recipients (Basically a number of favorite punching bags, includes some edits)

Orochi Geese:

- 1) X-Pac
- 2) HHH
- 3) Kevin Nash

- 4) Scott Hall
- 5) Vince McMahon

Phaq:

- 1) Vince McMahon
- 2) Shawn Michaels
- 3) Jeff hardy
- 4) X-Pac
- 5)any wrestler who can wrestle, but doesn't because he's in the WWE/U.S.

The Author's Preferred CRITICAL Test Dummies:

- 1) Mr. McMahon(I can not remember how many 4 on 1s I've had against him)
- 2) Cripple H(Sometimes as McMahon's tag partner vs. Vader, Kobashi, Hansen, and Dr. Death)
- 3) Road Dogg(Can't stand Mr. Shakylegs)
- 4)Billy Gunn(I perhaps hate him worse than Road Dogg)
- 5) Nashole/Kevin Nash(Leg Submissions with Flair, need I say more)

Hopefully this guide will enlighten both curious wrestling fans who have never even seen a match of Fire Pro, new owners who are in the process of renaming the wrestlers and leagues(hint, this guide is accurate and works great for this purpose if you can not download a rename file, or just want to double check), or even seasoned vets who have problems with remembering everything about every one of the 200+ people in the game, not to mention their own edits. I hope that you, the reader will get the same degree of satisfaction out of this guide as I still do revising it constantly, referring to it as a reference guide, and just reading it for enjoyment. If you wish to print this off, I recommend a size eight, Times New Roman font, it is readable and compact enough to be useful.(And do cut out anything aside from the essential information, or you might find that you are out of paper before it is halfway done!)
