Notes: Some non-crucial choices have been left out, I will add them later when the translation is complete. (Game has only been released in Japanese.) To get all the endings it's enough to just know whether to choose A, B or C though. More details to follow.

Version notes: It's a bit choppy but a lot of this game follows Silent Hill on Playstation. Many of the choices don't affect your ending at all. I will flesh out this FAQ in the future.

Choice 1: look for Cheryl or look for someone else in the town. This choice does not affect your ending at all.

Choice 2: (alley) see what the noise is or try to escape. Does not affect ending.

Choice 3: Take the gun or refuse it. (You'll get the gun either way.)

Choice 4,5, 6, 7: (Cafe, streets, police station) do not affect ending.
-if you get the police station puzzle, just look at the numbers on the paper and type them in including the asterixes.

School: after entering the teacher's room and answering or not answering the phone, you have a choice of three books. This is the first choice that affects your ending.

---

Choice A: Fairy Tale book
"Hearing this, the hunter armed with bow and arrow said, "I will kill the lizard." But upon meeting his opponent, he held back, taunting "Who's afraid of a reptile?" At this, the furious lizard hissed, "I'll swallow you up in a single bite!" Then the huge creature attacked, jaws open wide. This was what the man wanted. Calmly drawing his bow, he shot into the lizard's gaping mouth. Effortlessly the arrow flew, piercing the defenseless maw. And the lizard fell down dead."

Choice B: Pharmaceuticals book:

"White Claudia:

Perennial herb found near water.

Reaches height of 10 to 15 inches.

Oblong leaves, white blossoms.

Seeds contain hallucinogen.

Ancient records show it was used for religious ceremonies.

The hallucinogenic effect was key.

Product only available in

Select areas of Silent Hill.

Raw material is White Claudia,

A plant peculiar to the region."

---

Choice c: Religious studies book:

"The characteristics lies where each religion has its own unique doctrine depending on the region. Since long ago, it was told that they could avoid disasters only by offering sacrifices.

Most of the followers are occupied by those who have renounced the world and residents who live at home must deepen their knowledge of the holy book. However, the one-sided followers have a tendency to hide the fact that they are followers. This is because they believed that the efficacy will return to void if that was known to people.

In the present days, even the existence of black magic which was thought to have disappeared, is being actively researched in the rural areas.

During the process, an altar lit by holy flames and a symbolic crest are required, where it is acknowledged that a new existence can be created by descending an evil entity and having it make contact with a saint.

In this case, the saint is not limited to the ceremonial leader and matters not if it's a lifeless object."

-Hospital kitchen: this is the second choice that seems to affect which ending you get.

(A) grab a plastic bottle

(B) don't take a plastic bottle

as in the playstation game, if you don't take the bottle you can't get the red liquid. If you chose to grab the bottle, you then have a choice to (A) get some of the red liquid in the director's office, or (B) leave it there.

Lighthouse (after seeing Alessa): Choice A leads to "D" endings

Choice B leads you back to the hospital.

Once you get there

*choice A leads to the "A" and "B" endings.

*choice b leads to the "C" endings.

Endings:

A & B: Similar to the endings of the playstation game, Harry finds the area with the grates on the floors and battles the demon thing.

C: (not yet translated)

D: The Fictional Endings:

It was all just a story that Harry wrote. These end with a picture of Harry's desk.

E1 & E2: The bad endings. Basically everybody dies.
