Introduction

IMO, wCw Mayhem was the least fun WCW game on the PSX and N64 game consoles for its time. I realize this was EA's first game and there were a lot of good things about it: The graphics made the game look realistic, they had commentary in there which is something that THQ didn't do with THEIR games, and wCw Mayhem also allowed Playstation gamers to do moves from the same variety of positions that N64 gamers were allowed in the THQ N64 games. However, that all doesn't add up to a good wrestling game. The game skimped on the most important aspect of all games: Gameplay! The control was terrible and the lack of moves made matches incredible redundant. It was like wrestling as the same wrestler no matter who I chose. The game may have an impressive roster much like how wCw did but it wasn't a solid game much like how wCw was not a solid company.

A FEW THINGS...

There are a few things I wanna say that don't fall under any particular subject:

The entry ways for the pay-per-view arenas are NOT the same ones that wCw used at their pay-per-views. They are custom stages that EA made themselves using their own creativity.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO BEAT THE WHOLE QUEST FOR THE BEST TO UNLOCK THE HIDDEN WRESTLERS!!!

You just have to beat the hidden wrestler in the Quest for the Best. For example, if you wanted to unlock Bobby Blaze and you beat him in a #3 contender match for the Television Title, then you've already unlocked him and would have no need to continue on with the Quest For The Best unless there was another wrestler you could unlock in the Quest For The Best under the same criteria (e.g. Non-cruiserweight on Easy)

TO UNLOCK ALL THE WRESTLERS: Enter the code, PLYHDNGYS
To unlock the OLD MONDAY NITRO SET: Enter the code, PLYNTRCLSC

To get a HEALTH METER in the game, enter the code, PRNTSTMN
To get a DAMAGE METER in the game, enter the code, PRNTMMNTM

-----

Crowd Pleasers

-----

The moves that really increases your momentum are the following:

- Running Attacks
- Gorilla Press Drop
- Top Rope Moves
- Weapons
- Stomps
- Moves off the apron to the floor.

Running Leg Drop Trick:

A trick to making the Leg Drop look like it was done running is to actually run into your opponent and then once your wrestler has reached your opponent, he will stop moving but continue striding his legs as if he was still running. When your wrestler does that, press the required button(s) for the Leg Drop.

Pulling off Seated Turnbuckle Moves early in the match:

Whip your opponent into the corner and run in right behind him. once you two come to a stop, hold the Square. Your wrestler will most likely be able to lift his opponent onto the turnbuckle and a Top Rope Frankensteiner or something like that.

Smooth Movement:

I, for one, am bothered by the way the wrestlers will have to hop over every once and a while when you're trying to slap on a submission hold. The reason why is because it doesn't look smooth and it takes away from the way the match flows nice and smooth. The following table is to let you know what side you need to be on when your opponent is on the ground in order for your wrestler to slap on a certain submission hold without having to do that little annoying hop.

Face Up
Name of Move	Your Opponent's Right or Left Side of Body
Walls of Jericho	Feet/Right
Face Down
Bow and Arrow	Left
Camel Clutch	Right
The Crossface	Left
Walls of Jericho	Right
STF	Right

REVERSALS

NOTE: The following section entitled "REVERSALS" is word for word taken from the prima.com website. I give them all credit for this section because it is their work and I am not claiming it as my own. It is simply excellent research that I would like you people to read.

It's possible to reverse your opponent's moves by countering and using them to your advantage. This is achieved by tapping the action buttons when your opponent is setting you up in a Grapple. Correct timing is essential if you are to have any degree of success.

If you get everything right, you should see the word "Reversal" flash on the screen as your opponent attempts to set you up. Instead of falling victim to a heavy blow, you turn his own move against him into a Powerbomb or submission hold.

Remember, you are not the only one who can reverse Grapple moves and holds. If you use the same move over and over again, your opponent will know what to expect and plan his counter accordingly. That's why you need to use a wide range of attacking moves to pick up a victory. Reversals also play a huge role when weapons are being used.

If you fail to hit an opponent, either by being too slow or missing him completely, he will counter your attack by Dropkicking the weapon at your head. This head-splitting action results in you taking the full impact. You can reverse this move by pressing the Power Kick combo while in a standing position. Then watch as your wrestler kicks the weapon back into you opponent with ferocious impact.

Another reversible move can be performed when your opponent is running straight toward you. Press the attack buttons to throw the opponent over your shoulders and onto a painful landing position behind you.

READY

-----

ATTACKER STANDING-OPPONENT STANDING

Leg Sweep (Reversal to Regular Kick):

Catch your opponent's leg and sweep their legs out from under them.

ATTACKER RUNNING-OPPONENT STANDING

Back Body Drop:

(Self-explanatory)

-----

GRAPPLE

-----

ATTACKER FRONT GRAPPLE-OPPONENT FRONT GRAPPLE

Club to Back (vs. a grapple attempt):

You simply club the attacker in the back.

Fujiwara Armbar:

You grab the attackers arm, drag them down to the ground in a

Chris Benoit Crossface fashion, and lock him/her in a Fujiwara Arm Bar

Piledriver Reversal: The Attacker places your head between his legs but you flip him over in a Back Body Drop motion.

ATTACKER REAR GRAPPLE-OPPONENT STANDING

Jawbreaker:

You place your head under the attacker's chin, grab the top of his head, and drop down in a jawbreaker.

-----

WHIPPED

-----
ATTACKER STANDING-OPPONENT SITTING ON TURNBUCKLE

Top Rope Powerbomb:

The attacker attempts a Hurricanrana but you hold onto his/her legs and throw him/her down with a powerbomb

GAME TIPS

NOTE: The following section entitled "GAME TIPS" is word for word taken from the prima.com website. I give them all credit for this section because it is their work and I am not claiming it as my own. It is simply excellent research that I would like you people to read.

When pinned by an opponent, kick him off by pressing the Kick button while directly facing him.

Taunt your opponent when he is stunned and you regain energy.

Keep your opponent guessing by executing a number of different moves.

During Tag Team bouts, make tags regularly to ensure that your team is fresh.

Use submission holds to wear down your opponent.

When an opponent is standing outside the ring, run toward the rope nearest to him and dive through the ropes, pressing the Grapple button before making contact to squash him.

If your energy is running low during a match, get out of the ring to pick up some valuable recovery time.

Score a cheap victory by stunning your opponent out of the ring, stepping back inside and watching him be counted out.

Moveslists and Brief Bios

NOTE:

- 1) The following section covers only the moves of wrestlers that varies from wrestler to wrestler. I will not add a section to tell you what universal buttons do (e.g. L2 is to change focus no matter what position the attacker or opponent is in).

- 2) I stated the wrestlers' move that's listed in the game and the wrestlers' real finishing move because the listed moves are often inaccurate. The line called "Finisher" is the wrestler's finishing move in real life and the line called "Listed Move" is what the makers of WCW Mayhem listed as the wrestler's trademark or finishing move.
- 3) The names are listed in alphabetical order.
- 4) The line called "Titles Held" only states the titles that the wrestlers have attained respectively up to the date of the release of this game which is 8/31/99.
- 5) *** (Three asterisks) mean that the move is exclusive to that wrestler and that wrestler alone. This applies to all moves in this game except Entrances.

When this game was released in late August, Chris Jericho, had already moved on to the WWE which explains why Jericho's video game counterpart was cast as a hidden character rather than a featured character. After being held down in WCW for so long for his size, Jericho was waiting out his contract which explains his disappearance from WCW TV for half a year only to debut in the WWE where he would become a major star.

Hometown: Mexico City, Mexico
---

Nickname: The "Chair"-man of WCW
Finisher: Corkscrew Body Attack from Top Rope (a.k.a. Whisper in the Wind)
Listed Move: La Parkinator

La Parka is the biggest of the luchadores in wCw. He has earned the reputation of being the Chairman of wCw for bringing a steel chair with him to every match. Despite his appearance as a skeleton come-to-life, he is one of the wackiest characters in wCw.

The costume that La Parka has in this game is inaccurate except for the mask. He always wears a body suit which is mostly black and the design of a menacing snake's face on the front of his torso.

 THE MOVES DESCRIBED IN DETAIL

These definitions and/or explanations of what the motion capture for the moves look in this game compared to standard execution of these moves in real-life.

-----
 READY
 -----

ATTACKER STANDING-OPPONENT STANDING

Back Elbow:

A standing elbow attack to the side of the head. This move is meant for the corner but is used as a standing attack in this game. Usually 7 footers like Kevin Nash use this move.

Double Axe Handle:

A standing Double Axe Handle smash

Headbutt:

An odd, no hands headbutt. Attacker straight-up uses his head to hit his opponent.

Spinning Backfist:

A martial arts move. Attacker spins around and hits his opponent in the head with the back of his fist.

Uppercut:

A Jeff Jarrett punch/Scotty Riggs punch. The attacker uppercut punches his opponent under the chin.

Chrionic Kick:

A standing version of the Glacier's finishing move, the Superkick. There is no sliding of the feet involved.

Dropkick:

Basic Standing Dropkick

Regular Kick:

Kick to the gut.

'Sean O'haire' Spinning Back Kick:

A jumping and 'Sean O'haire' Spinning Back Kick done the way Sean O'haire does it.

ATTACKER RUNNING-OPPONENT STANDING

Chop Block/ Knee Clip:

The difference between a Chop Block and a Knee Clip is in where the attacker hits his opponent's leg. When done from the front, it is a Chop Block. The opponent has his shin taken out and is in turn, flipped onto his back. When done from behind, the opponent's knee is clipped out from behind him and falls to his knees.

Clothesline:

Standard Clothesline.

Diving Clothesline:

Attacker dives to the side of his opponent with his arm extended.

Flying Headscissors:

If you want to pull this one off you must be done running head-on towards your opponent. It is more of an alternative to the standard running attacks. Hard to pull off. Done best when your opponent is standing still.

Running Dropkick:

Attacker runs and does a dropkick that pushes past the opponents head

Running High Knee:

Shades of Harley Race as Jim Ross would say. A Triple H move. The attacker runs and jumps to the side of the opponent and the attacker lifts his knee into the opponent's face. Looks best when you whip your opponent in the ropes first.

Shoulder Tackle:

A Diving Shoulder Tackle without much hang time.

GRAPPLE
-----

ATTACKER FRONT GRAPPLE-OPPONENT FRONT GRAPPLE

110th Street Slam:

Booker T's 110th Street Slam done from a standing position. Called the "Sidewalk Slam" by wCw announcers.

Ankle Lock Submission:

A smack to face followed by a roll-through into the Ankle Lock Submission.

Back Breaker:

As opposed to the Side Back Breaker, the attacker lifts his opponent up like in a Fallaway Slam and then drop his opponent square onto his knee

Bear Hug:

Standard Bear Hug. Only Scott Norton has the Bear Hug from the grapple position in this game.

Belly-to-Belly Suplex:

A Belly-to-Belly Suplex where the attacker releases his opponent to the side and does not fall with him. Rather, the attacker stays standing throughout the move.

Choke Slam:

A weak Choke Slam. The opponent is not lifted high as the Giant (a.k.a. Big Show) would. Rather, the attacker lifts his opponent only about two feet in the air and lands on his knees with his opponent knees to makeup for the lack of impact.

'David Taylor' Butterfly Suplex:

This is a Double Underhook Suplex done just as David Taylor does it to finish off his opponents (including the Floatover). David Taylor, as you may or may not know, is the English fellow who wrestled for wCw for years. In this move, the attacker Double Underhooks his opponent, suplexes him over, and floats over locking the arms as well as legs into a tight pin. Also, wCw announcer, Tony Schiavone referred to Double Underhook Suplexes as Butterfly Suplexes.

Death Valley Driver:

Standard Death Valley Driver.

Drop Toe Hold:

Standard Drop Toe Hold done from a standing position. This sets up the attacker for Ground-Face-Down moves.

DDT:

DDT where the opponent is dropped onto the top of his and falls over onto his back. I still listed Raven's Special Move as the "DDT" and not the Evenflow DDT because they are the same motion capture.

Elbow Smash:

The attacker puts his opponent in an Arm Wringer and smashes his elbow into his opponent's arm.

Flatliner:

Chris Canyon's finishing move. A Reverse Russian Leg Sweep. Chris Canyon called this move the "D.O.A." when under the Mortis gimmick and also called this move "That's A Wrap" when under the Chris "Champagne" Canyon moniker.

Gorilla Press Body Drop:

The Ultimate Warrior's signature move. The attacker presses his opponent over his head and releases him, allowing him to fall front-first onto the ground. In real life, this move is used by Scott Steiner and once in a while, by Bill Goldberg.

Gourdbuster:

This move is also known as the Front Suplex.

Gutwrench Gutbuster:

The attacker gutwrenches his opponent and the attacker hoists him into the air only to drop his opponent gut-first onto his knee.

Inverted Atomic Drop:

Standard move.

Hurricanrana:

(See section below.)

Piledriver:

Standard move

Powerbomb:

This is a basic Powerbomb. The attacker takes a couple steps before throwing his opponent down.

Pump Handle Suplex:

The attacker gets his opponent into half of a Pump Handle (gets the opponent's arm between the legs) and throws him back almost like a in a Fallaway Slam.

Scoop Slam:

Basic Body Slam.

Short-arm Clothesline:

When the attacker does the Clothesline for this, it looks a lot like the way Sting does his Clotheslines.

Shoulder Breaker:

The attacker picks his opponent up as if he was going for a Scoop Slam but drop his opponent's shoulder onto his knee. (No running involved like the way Rocky Maivia used to do it).

Side Headlock And Punch:

The attacker gets his opponent in a Side Headlock and Punches him. This is similar to what Ric Flair does but with only one punch.

Side Russian Leg Sweep:

Standard Russian Leg Sweep.

Small Package:

Also called the Inside Cradle.

Snap Mare Takeover:

Standard Move. It's a takedown so no high impact.

Snap Suplex:

Standard Snap Suplex.

Vertical Suplex:

The motion capture for this move almost looks like a Hanging Vertical Suplex but it doesn't quite have the hang time.

(FINISHER)

Belly-to-Belly Suplex:

(See in section above.)

Choke Slam:

(See in section above.)

Double Underhook Powerbomb:

This is actually a Double Underhook Saulto. The attacker Double Underhooks his opponent and flips his opponent onto his back in Scott Steiner style.

Diamond Cutter:

The motion for this Diamond Cutter has a bit of running prior to Bulldogging the opponent.

Falcon Arrow:

Both Juventud Guerrera and Bam Bam Bigelow have this move. Though it is called the "Juvi Driver" and "Greetings from Asbury Park" in the commentary, the motion capture is that of a Falcon Arrow. While the Juvi Driver and Greetings maneuvers are similar to the Falcon Arrow, it didn't feel right for me to list it as either.

Hurricanrana:

This Hurricanrana does not include a pin. The attacker jumps and quickly snaps his opponent onto his head.

Jackhammer:

This a sloppy Jackhammer. Although, Bill Goldberg DID start to get sloppy with his Jackhammers somewhere in the middle of his undefeated streak. The attacker picks his opponent up in the Suplex and then is late in following through with the Powerslam

Meltdown:

Wrath's impressive, three-step finishing move.

- 1) The attacker gets his opponent in the Pump Handle.
- 2) The attacker then rolls his opponent onto his shoulder.
- 3) The attacker finally Powerslams his opponent onto the mat with force.

Neckbreaker:

This is actually called a Hangman's Noose Neckbreaker. When the attacker drops down, he lands on his ass rather than on his back.

Powerslam:

Commentary in this game calls it either the "Running Powerslam" or just the "Powerslam" but they have the same motion capture. I listed this move as simply the Powerslam and never the Running Powerslam because in my book, only the late, great "British Bulldog" Davey Boy Smith knew what a real Running Powerslam is.

Running Powerslam:

(See "Powerslam" above.)

ATTACKER REAR GRAPPLE-OPPONENT STANDING

Abdominal Stretch:

This Abdominal Stretch looks odd because the attacker pulls both his opponent's loose arm and opponent's chin back rather than wrapping his own arm around his opponent's neck.

Back Rake:

One of Hollywood Hulk Hogan's favorite moves. The attacker simply rakes the back of his opponent with his finger nails.

Belly-to-Back Suplex:

Standard Move.

Bulldog:

The motion capture for this Bulldog looks almost exactly like their motion capture for the Diamond Cutter. The only difference is that the attacker's arms have his opponent in a Bulldog Headlock.

Clothesline:

Simple Clothesline to the back of the opponent's neck.

Cobra Clutch:

Also known as the Million Dollar Dream.

Double Axe Handle:

Same motion capture as the Double Axe Handle from the Ready Position.

Forearm Smash:

The attacker strikes his forearm into his opponent's lower back.

Full Nelson Slam:

Standard Move.

German Suplex:

The attacker does a German Suplex but does not land immediately into a Bridge. He lands flat on his back then scoots back into a Bridge.

Headbutt:

The attacker simply headbutts his opponent on the back of his opponent's head.

'Kevin Nash' Side Slam:

The attacker picks his opponent right up off his feet and slams him down with authority. The attacker then leans back with a pin. (The whole motion capture looks like the way Kevin Nash does it).

Nerve Hold:

The attacker clamps his hand onto what appears to be the trapezius of his opponent.

Rear Choke:

The attacker chokes his opponent from behind using his two hands.

Meat Grinder:

Mike Tenay's technical name for this is the "Re-inverted DDT." The attacker does a Reverse DDT but is done in the fashion that Shawn Stasiak did it in the WWE (then called the WWF) as Meat. The attacker gets his opponent in a type of headlock but drops down in a Reverse DDT so his opponent lands with his body flat on the mat rather than falling right on the back of his head.

School Boy Roll-up:

Standard Move.

Scorpion Death Drop:

(See "Meat Grinder")

Spin into Hurricanrana:

The attacker mounts his opponent's shoulders from behind and then spins around so he is in prime position to Hurricanrana his opponent.

Torture Rack:

Lex Luger's Finishing Move. Looks just as painful as how the real Lex Luger would do it.

Victory Roll:

The attacker mounts his opponent's shoulders from behind and then leans forward, forcing his opponent to roll with him and thus landing the attacker into a tight little pin.

-----
WHIPPED

-----
ATTACKER STANDING-OPPONENT LAY IN TURNBUCKLE

Boot Choke:

The standard "big man" move. The attacker lifts his boot up high enough to place under his opponent's chin and use his weight to apply pressure.

Kicks To Midsection:

(Self-explanatory)

Monkey Flip:

The attacker climbs up onto the thighs of his opponent and flips him onto his back.

Shoulder Thrusts to Midsection:

(Self-explanatory)

Tornado DDT:

Standard move.

Tree of Woe With Kicks:

The attacker puts his opponent into a Tree Of Woe and kicks him in the ribs.

ATTACKER STANDING-OPPONENT SITTING ON TURNBUCKLE

Punches:

The attacker climbs up onto the second turnbuckle and punches away at his opponent.

Superplex:

Standard move.

Top Rope Belly-to-Belly Overhead Release Suplex:

Standard move.

Top Rope Frankensteiner:

Also known as the "Top Rope Hurricanrana."

'Dean Malenko' Top Rope Gutbuster:

The attacker lifts his opponent onto his shoulders in a Fireman Carry then leaps into the air, releasing his opponent in mid-air so they meet in a Gutbuster.

Top Rope Hurricanrana:

Standard move.

ATTACKER STANDING-OPPONENT RUNNING

Back Body Drop:

Standard move.

Bear Hug:

Same motion capture as the Bear Hug from the Grapple position.

Choke Lift:

The attacker lifts his opponent up by the throat. This is not a submission hold.

Choke Slam:

Same motion capture as Choke Slam from the Grapple position.

Chrionic Kick:

Same motion capture as the Chrionic Kick from the Ready position.

Flapjack Gutbuster:

The attacker lifts his opponent up like doing a Flapjack but he drops to his knee so the opponent lands on it gut-first.

Gorilla Press Body Drop:

Same motion capture as the Gorilla Press Body Drop from the Grapple Position.

Knee to Gut:

The attacker rams his knee hard into the gut of his opponent.

Shoulder Tackle:

Though commentary may call it the "Spear" at times, it is nothing but a simple Shoulder Tackle.

Sleeper Hold:

The attacker catches his opponent in a Sleeper Hold and lets him down onto his back.

Spinebuster:

An Arn Anderson style Spinebuster.

Tilt-O-Whirl Gutbuster:

The attacker uses his opponent's running momentum to flip him over into a Gutbuster.

X-Factor:

The attacker straight-up kicks his opponent in the stomach and follows up with what announcer, Scott Hudson, calls the "Face Jam." The motion capture is similar to what Sean Waltman (a.k.a. Syxx, a.k.a. X-Pac, a.k.a. Syxx-pac) calls the X-Factor.

-----
OPPONENT DOWN
-----

ATTACKER STANDING-OPPONENT FACE DOWN

Bow and Arrow:

Standard move.

Camel Clutch:

Standard move. Scott Steiner has this move but it is neither elevated nor powerful enough for me to call the Steiner Recliner.

The Crossface:

Chris Benoit's submission hold. Once known as the Crippler Crossface. It's modern (2003) name is simply "The Crossface."

Driving Elbow:

Bret-Hart-style Elbow Drop.

Elbow Drop:

The attacker gets a vertical leap and does an Elbow Drop.

Indian Deathlock with Facelock:

The attacker applies an Indian Deathlock and then leans back to apply a Facelock as well.

Knee Drop:

Standard Move. Doesn't roll after like the way Ric Flair does.

Leg Drop:

Leg Drop to torso.

Reverse Surfboard:

Also known as the Romero Special. The difference between this and a regular Surfboard is that the regular Surfboard has the opponent on his stomach and the attacker plants his foot onto the opponent's upperback to use for leverage in pulling the arms back. It resembles riding a surfboard.

Rings of Saturn:

This Double Arm Bar is Perry Saturn's old finishing hold.

Running Leg Drop:

Same motion capture as the "Leg Drop" but looks as someone pushed the fast-forward button a VCR.

Senton Splash:

A somersaulting Senton Back Splash.

Stomp:

(Self-explanatory)

STF:

The attacker gets his opponent in a "'S'tep-over 'T'oehold" and then locks in a "'F'acelock."

Walls of Jericho:

Although the commentary for this game calls this move the Boston Crab, the attacker does not sit in all the way he would if it were a Boston Crab. Instead, it is slightly elevated the way Chris Jericho does his Walls of Jericho. Call me a WWE mark if you will, but there is a bit of a difference which makes this move unique to Chris Jericho. One may also call this move the Liontamer because this is the alternate way Chris Jericho would apply the Liontamer (when he was in wCw). However, he only applied it this way to allow his opponent to reach the ropes. (Speaking from a wrestling being fake sense.)

ATTACKER STANDING-OPPONENT FACE UP

Driving Elbow:

Bret-Hart-style Elbow Drop.

Elbow Drop:

The attacker gets a vertical leap and does an Elbow Drop.

Standard move.

'Eddie Guerrero' Foot Scrape:

The attacker places his foot upon his opponent's forehead and spins around so he scrapes his opponent's forehead leaving a burning feeling on his opponent.

Headbutt To Groin:

(Self-explanatory)

Knee Drop:

Standard Move. Doesn't roll after like the way Ric Flair does.

Leg Drop:

Leg Drop to torso.

Liontamer:

This is the old-school way Chris Jericho used to apply his version of the Boston Crab.

Rear Chinlock:

Standard move.

Running Leg Drop:

Same motion capture as the "Leg Drop" but looks as someone pushed the fast-forward button a VCR.

Scorpion Deathlock:

Sting's finishing hold. Same motion capture as the Sharpshooter.

Senton Splash:

A somersaulting Senton Back Splash.

Sharpshooter:

Bret Hart's finishing hold. Same motion capture as the Scorpion Death Lock.

Stomp:

(Self-explanatory)

Tequila Sunrise:

Konnan's finishing hold.

Walls of Jericho:

(See "Walls of Jericho" above.)

ATTACKER ON TURNBUCKLE-OPPONENT FACE DOWN OR UP

Alabama Jam:

Same motion capture as the Guillotine Leg Drop. Called the Alabama Jam when Bobby Eaton does it.

'Alex Wright' Top Rope Knee Drop:

This is a Top Rope Knee Drop done the way only Alex Wright does it. The attacker leaps off the top rope and lands with one knee on his opponent and the other foot used to land. The attacker then rolls over to his feet.

Big Elbow:

This is Top Rope Elbow Drop done more in the fashion Shawn Michaels would do it whereas the Macho Man would put his whole body into the Elbow Drop and land almost back-first.

Diving Headbutt:

This is not a Chris Benoit style Swandive Headbutt. Rather it is a sloppy Diving Headbutt with a lot of hang time.

Guillotine Leg Drop:

Standard Move.

450 Splash:

450 Splash is short for 450 DEGREE Splash. The attacker somersaults a full 450 degrees in mid-air to land on his opponent. The motion capture is done just like how Juventud Guerrera used to do it before he stopped using it. It is lacking in form

Moonsault:

The attacker starts facing center of the ring but he jumps and turns to face the ring post and then uses that little jump to springboard into a Moonsault

Top Rope Splash:

The attacker spreads his arms and legs out to the side to hit with a big time Splash.

Shooting Star Press:

Billy Kidman's awe-inspiring finishing move. Motion Capture is done just the way Kidman does it.

ATTACKER ON TURNBUCKLE-OPPONENT STANDING

'Booker T' Missile Dropkick:

This move is a Dropkick where the attacker kicks past his opponent just as Booker T did when he used the Missile Dropkick as his finishing move.

Butt Thesz Press:

The motion capture is actually the same as the Guillotine Leg Drop. The difference is that this move can only be done onto a standing opponent and the effect it has is that of a posterior-first Thesz Press.

Double Axe Handle:

Standard move. The way the attacker swings his arms at the end of the move reminds me of Lash LeRoux.

Flying Lariat:

Looks a lot like the motion capture for the Top Rope Splash except the attacker extends his right arm all the way out.

'Hector Garza' Corkscrew Plancha:

The first question someone may have is, "Who the (four letter word) is Hector Garza?!" Hector Garza is a luchadore who had brief stints with both the WWE and the WCW. He was famous for his Corkscrew Plancha that he would do from the Top Turnbuckle to the outside. Technically, Chris Kanyon is the only person who you can use to do this move just as Hector Garza did it (from the top turnbuckle to the outside).

Super Hurricanrana:

This is an amazing move in which the attacker leaps off the top turnbuckle and lands onto his opponent's shoulders and flips back into a Hurricanrana. Juventud Guerrera has done this a few times but Lita (WWE) is most famous for doing this move.

-----
OUTSIDE OF RING
-----

ATTACKER RUNNING IN RING-OPPONENT OUTSIDE OF RING

Asai Moonsault:

The attacker leaps from inside the ring onto the apron and then leaps from the apron onto the second rope and then Moonsaults from the second rope to the ground. This move, as you may or may not know, is named after the Ultimo Dragon.

Baseball Slide:

Standard Move. If you miss with this move, it's okay, the attacker plays it off and stands up on the apron.

Suicide Dive:

Standard Lucha Libre move.

Pescado:

The attacker uses the Top Rope to Slingshot himself over and land on his opponent.

Twisting Body Splash:

The attacker leaps over the top rope and twists in mid-air.

ATTACKER ON APRON-OPPONENT STANDING OUT OF RING

Double Axe Handle:

Same motion capture as the Double Axe Handle from the Top Rope.

Flying Lariat:

Same motion capture as the Flying Lariat from the Top Rope.

'Hector Garza' Corkscrew Plancha:

Same motion capture as the Corkscrew Plancha from the Top Rope.

'Booker T' Missile Dropkick:

Same motion capture as the Missile Dropkick from the Top Rope.

Shooting Star Press:

Same motion capture as the Shooting Star Press from the Top Rope.

-----
TAUNTS/ENTRANCES
-----

'Alex Wright' Dance:

This is the dance that Alex Wright used to do that we all hated.

'Big Poppa Pump' Muscle Flex:

Scott Steiner turns his back and flexes his right bicep so he can kiss it.

'Booker T' Raise The Roof:

Booker does that Raise The Roof hand motion that the crowd likes to mimic.

'Buff Bagwell' Kiss Biceps:

Buff flexes both his biceps and kisses them both.

'Buff' Strut:

This is the weird strut that Buff does as if he's slipping only so he can get on his knee and flex his muscles.

'Chris Benoit' Slit Throat:

The high sign for Chris Benoit's Diving Headbutt. The motion is done just like the way Chris Benoit does this but it is slowed down considerably.

'DDP' Diamond Sign:

DDP puts his hands into the air in the shape of a diamond. Could it be Diamond Cutter time?

'DDP' "Bang" Diamond Sign:

Same as the "'DDP' Diamond Sign" but DDP throws his hands down and kicks as if saying "Bang." He only does this one in his entrance.

'Disco' Hip Shake:

Disco points out and shakes his hips in a dancing fashion.

'Disco' Dance:

This is that Disco Inferno dance that the audience always likes to imitate when you watch any sort of wCw programming that Disco Inferno is on.

'Goldberg' Elbow Thrusts:

This is the stretching that Goldberg usually does as walks down the isle to the ring.

'Goldberg' Power Surge:

Goldberg lifts his hands from low to high in the air as if a load of power was flowing throughout him.

'Hollywood Hulk Hogan' Air Guitar:

Just like how Hollywood Hogan would pretend to strum the World Heavyweight Title.

'Hollywood Hulk Hogan' Ear Cup:

Ear Cup as if calling to the crowd for applause.

'Hollywood Hulk Hogan' Muscle Poses:

These muscle poses are done in the reverse way 'Hollywood Hulk Hogan' would do them. He does the side muscle flex and then does the Zeus flex.

'Juvi' Head Bob:

Juventud bends over, places his hands on his lap, and bobs his head up and down so his hair flails up and down.

'Lex Luger' Torture Rack Sign:

The motion Lex Luger does to signal for the Torture Rack.

'Macho Man' Muscle Flex:

Muscle Flex done with Macho Man manerisms.

'Macho Man' "Ohhhh Yeeeaahhh" Air Point:

Macho grabs his belt buckle with one hand and stirs the air with the index finger in his other hand.

'Norman Smiley' Big Wiggle:

Norman Smiley's famous Big Wiggle! Norman smacks the air as if he was smacking a woman's ass on both sides.

'Norman Smiley' Search Skies:

Only one wrestler would shade his eyes with one hand and peer out into the crowd. That was Norman Smiley.

'Ric Flair' Slick Hair:

Ric slicks his hair back and jerks his head out as if yelling "Wooooooo!"

'Ric Flair' Strut:

Strutting the strut like how Ric Flair does it.

'Rick Steiner' Barks:

Rick Steiner pulls his head back and barks into the air like he always does.

'Scott Hall' Double Point:

Scott Hall's famous point.

'Scott Hall' Bad Guy Hand Pumps:

This is the pumping motion that Scott Hall when he's in the ring during his intro.

'Sting' Howl:

Sting's yell into the crowd.

Adjust Wrist Tape:

(Self-explanatory)

Arms Out "Hey Dude":

Extends arms out in a lazy fashion.

Arms Out "Praise Me":

Puts arms out and looks out to the crowd as if seeking more applause.
The wrestler then puts his hands on his hips.

Boxing Champ Celebration:

The wrestler jumps up and down with his hands high in the air.

Cocky Point:

The wrestler points to his opponent and looks out the crowd as if saying, "You call this guy a wrestler?!"

"Come On":

The wrestler gestures for his opponent to bring it on.

Gangsta Walk:

Rey Mysterio and Konnan walk out as if gangsters.

Hand Clasp Bodybuilder Pose:

The wrestler clasps his hands to together with his arms forming a circle just as a bodybuilder would pose.

"Hey":

The wrestler raises one arm into the air as if saying, "Hey folks."

Jumping Jacks:

(Self-explanatory)

Overhead Clap:

The wrestler claps overhead as if encouraging the audience to clap along with him.

Shadow Boxing:

The wrestler does some comical shadow boxing.

Shake Out Wrists:

(Self-explanatory)

Stomping "Hoot Hoot Hoot"

The wrestler does three exaggerated stomps and three arm pumps.

Warming Up:

The wrestler does some warming up exercises.

"Whoa":

The wrestler backs away as if blocking pyro or steam coming from the ground.
