DISCLAIMER: Gemfire is the property of Koei. However, I scribbled down various data from the cart into Excel (and later Open Office), then translated it into TXT format, so please, no FAQ theft!

I changed my mind, so this FAQ is allowed on nearly any website. It'll be on GameFAQs (www.gamefaqs.com), but you are freely allowed to put it up on your site as long as:

- (1) You do NOT claim credit for this FAQ. I wrote this, so all credit (barring the "special thanks" at the end) goes to your friendly Dragon (me).
- (2) You do NOT edit the faq in ANY way.
- (3) You keep the FAQ current by updating it whenever the gamefaqs copy is updated.
- (4) You upload it on your own site -- no leeching bandwidth.
- (5) You agree to take the FAQ down if I ask you to. It's unlikely, but...
- (6) You are NOT one of these despicable puddles of FAQ theft:

This is a list of the 64 generals that appear in Gemfire (aka Royal Blood in Japan). The first section contains a list of the generals' stats, while the second section contains a list of who they serve (if any) in which scenario. Thanks to Atma playing lots of RoTK games (a turn-based version of Dynasty Warriors), I am assuming that scenario 1 is 201 AD (which makes scenarios 2-4 206 AD, 211 AD, and 216 AD). Also note that only 28 of the 64 generals are actually attached to a family -- that means that if one of the others rebels, their last name can (and often will) vary from game to game. Note that I've sorted the generals by their force (or primary force if they serve more than one): Blanche, Lyle, Chrysalis, Molbrew, Flax, Coryll, Tate, Tordin, Divas, Tudoria, and finally Lankshire. Finally, four of the generals are female -- this is signified by the -F added to their name.

As of version 1.03, minor widespread updates have been added because of a certain... issue. You see, most officers receive either +1 to all three stats each January or no boost at all, whereas force leaders receive either +2 to all stats or no boost at all. Therefore, scenario 1 Erin will be either 82/87/76 or 84

/89/78 after the first chance to be boosted

, whereas scenario 1

Karl is either 76/57/77 or 77/58/78. But that applies to EVERY January, so they may get the boost before you even choose a force! Therefore, about a third of the officers were either a point or two higher than the base stats listed here. D'OH!

And no, the odds aren't the same for everyone. Scenario 4 Seth, for example, almost never gets that boost in the first year.

Yes, Adryl Lankshire and Pender "Lu Bu" Blanche switch sides between scenarios 3 and 4 despite being in line for the faction's throne!

====

Version 1.00 (11/5/2007): Atma submits it for publishing on Gamefaqs.

Version 1.01 (11/5/2007): Erm, I seem to have left out which columns are which scenarios. Sorry!

Version 1.02 (12/14/2007): Ack, Zeroality X pointed out to me that I still had the disclaimer say it's for Ro3K2 and not Gemfire, which is rather silly!

Version 1.03 (11/28/2010: Minor widespread updates (d'oh)
