Things To Know

There are 12 death defying missions for you to fly while playing Bogey Dead 6.

You can choose form an Easy, Normal or Hard difficulty setting.

You can set the controller mode to a easy or normal setting. In the easy setting you will only have to worry about controlling your flight. The computer will select the best target and weapon as well as prevent you from rolling. The normal setting lets you control all flight maneuvers and weapon selection.

You begin the game with 6 continues, which translate to 6 aircraft, if you crash or are shot down the mission fails.

To become familiar with the controls take advantage of the Training Missions.

if you have a Memory Card installed you can save your game before starting a mission or after completing a mission.

Going clockwise from lower left, the cockpit view will display your fighters status, amount of fuel and type of missile selected, the Mission Time Remaining, the Flight Cam, showing incoming missiles and enemy fighters and your radar. Objects on the radar screen display in different colors. Red objects are enemy aircraft above you. Yellow objects are enemy aircraft below you. Blue objects are enemy ground and sea forces. The large Yellow object is your mission target. A double circle indicates a target that you have locked on. Green objects

forces. While objects are friendly forces.

Going clockwise from lower left the HUD(Heads Up Display) shows your chaff loads, number of missiles available, degree of roll, your airspeed, engine thrust, a compass, alert warnings, altitude, Target Direction Vector, nose angle, number of Vulcan shots and number of flares.

You can play against another player in the Vs. Battle mode. However, to play you will need 2 game consoles, 2 monitors, 2 copies of Bogey Dead 6 and a Link Cable.

Game Hints, Tips & Clues

To attack a different target than the one that your weapon radar is locked on, press the triangle button to switch to the next closest contact.

Your best shot with a Sidewinder is when you can see the flames from the enemy's jet engine.

When attacking ground forces, come in so that the targets are in a row and then open fire straight down the row.

There is a secret object in the game that, if destroyed will give you infinite continues.
Good luck finding it!
